PRODUCT TECHNOLOGY

Phyto-chemicals Found in Medicinal Herbs

Phyto-chemicals, also known as phyto-nutrients, are natural non-essential chemical compounds found in plants (phyto is a Greek word meaning “plant”). They can occur in vegetables, grains, legumes, beans, fruits, herbs, nuts, roots, leaves and seeds.

Phyto-chemicals are compounds that give plants their color, flavor and smell. These compounds are thought to be largely responsible for the medicinal properties and health benefits of medicinal herbs. These natural compounds are classified according to their chemical structure and to some extent functional properties.
